

Major & Mini Grant FAQs

1. What kinds of projects is MHC excited to fund?

We are excited to support projects with rich, well-developed humanities content, strong participation from a topic expert, robust support from partners in the community, and plans to reach broad and diverse public audiences. Grant awards must be matched by cash and/or in-kind support.

2. What are MHC's funding priorities?

MHC seeks to support projects that:

- Are led by and/or serve people from traditionally & historically underrepresented groups;
- highlight traditionally underrepresented topics or that offer a new or rare perspective;
- serve rural populations;
- involve the intended audience/community served in the planning and implementation of the project.

3. Humanities content...what's that?

The main goal of the humanities is to develop awareness and understanding of people's lived experience, and to put it into words. Any aspect of human culture – literature, art, music, history, laws, ethics, philosophy – becomes humanities content when participants in the program or project are invited to deepen their understanding of the work and its context through interpretation, analysis, or discussion.

Humanities programs and projects can take many forms: exhibitions, conferences, film/video productions, podcasts/radio shows, discussions, performances framed by interpretation. What they have in common is a commitment to involving people in thinking, reflecting, and talking about important aspects of what it can be like to be alive.

One of the hallmarks of the humanities is the ethic of nonjudgmental discussion. All projects must evidence a spirit of inquiry, a balance between critical and celebratory perspectives, and provide a range of viewpoints and informed opinions, consistent with MHC's non-partisan mission. This is especially true when projects treat highly charged issues. Please note that MHC does not fund projects that promote a particular political, religious, or ideological point of view or discriminate against persons or groups.

4. Participation from a topic expert...who can that be? Why involve them?

The participation of at least one topic expert is required. Someone with deep expertise in the topic you're working on can serve as a sounding board and resource. They can help you make sure your project is addressing the most interesting and important elements of the topic, and that it's framed in a way that really draws participants into thinking about it and using it to reflect on their experience.

Deep expertise might include:

- having extensive professional and/or life experience on the subject;
- recognition by a cultural community as someone appropriate to teach or interpret traditional cultural knowledge, such as a tribal elder, historian, storyteller, or traditional practitioner;
- or an advanced degree in a humanities field, such as a university professor or graduate student.

5. Robust support from partners in the community...what does this mean?

Securing support from other organizations in the community can help your project reach a wider audience and accomplish more – as well as creating opportunities for further collaboration within the community. That might involve partnering with a library, historical society, or other community organization who may already reach your intended audience to help with outreach. We think it is important to involve people in the project early on and in the planning, especially the people who the project affects or is about.

6. Broad and diverse public audience...how important is this?

Programming that serves the communities of Maine is at the heart of what we do – so outreach needs to be a central part of your project. Your outreach can aim to engage the public at large, or engage specific audiences, like professional, ethnic, or community groups.

Our preference is for programs that are free. If a fee is charged, participation costs should be reasonable for the type of programming being presented.

7. Cash match and/or in-kind support...what does this mean?

The grant award must be matched 1:1 by either cash or in-kind support or a combination of both, which may come from a third-party or directly from the applicant. In other words, 50% of the total project costs must come from sources other than an MHC award. In-kind contributions may include time and materials, office space and equipment, travel, donated services, and other non-cash donations. It is important for MHC to be able to show that our grant funds leverage additional resources, so please include ALL match, even when it is more than 50%.

8. What kind of projects are ineligible?

MHC doesn't fund:

- Projects that engage in advocacy or discriminate against persons or groups.
- Projects that promote a particular political, religious, or ideological point of view.
- Projects that support specific public policies or legislations.
- Grants to individuals without a fiscal sponsor.
- Payment to students for projects that are being done for academic credit.
- Grants primarily for group or individual travel.
- Projects designed as fundraising ventures.
- Subawards.
- Capital expenditures, construction, or restoration costs.
- Normal organizational operating costs, indirect or overhead expenses unrelated to the project.
- Projects that have NO connection to Maine or the humanities.

9. Who is eligible to apply?

Organizations with 501c3 status, government organizations (such as federally recognized tribal governments or organizations or state/local/city governments), churches, or education organizations (such as schools or school districts, or public or private institutions of higher education) are eligible to apply without fiscal sponsorship.

If your organization is NOT a 501c3, or equivalent (see above) you will need a FISCAL SPONSOR for your project. The National Council of Nonprofits has a helpful resource sheet on fiscal sponsorship.

10. Who is NOT eligible to apply?

- For-profit organizations and political or advocacy organizations.
- If you currently have an overdue final report for a previous MHC grant, or if you have an open MHC project grant (Major, Mini, or Arts & Humanities Grants), you are not eligible to apply.
- If your organization has received a MHC project grant (Major, Mini, or Arts & Humanities Grants), you are not eligible to apply again in either the same or the following calendar year. For example, an organization awarded a grant (at any point) in 2025 would not be eligible to apply for ANY MHC project grants until January 2027.

11. How do I apply?

Applications are submitted through our online form.

- You can preview the application on our website.
- When the grant period is open, click on the link to the applications form.
- Saving your work: You can save your application and come back to it later by clicking the "Save and Resume Later" bar at the bottom of any page. When you do, you will see a pop-up message with a unique link to use when you (or a colleague) want to resume work. You have the option to have the link emailed to you. Save this link, as this is the only way to access your saved application. We are not able to see applications until after they are submitted to us. The link is good for 30 days.

- Please note: every time you click “Save and Resume Later” you will be given a NEW link to use to access your application.
- To make it easier to draft out responses to copy-and-paste into the application, a word version of the project narrative questions is available to download from our website.

12. I’ve never filled out a grant application before. Can you give me some advice?

Yes! Email the Grants Team: Lizz, Kyle, or Samaa – we can counsel you through the entire process.

13. I’ve applied for grants before...should I still talk to you before applying?

We strongly recommend it. Past applicants have found it very useful to check in with us about their idea and get advice – we can recommend topic experts, for example, or help you to fine-tune your project to better fit our guidelines.

14. Whom should I contact if I still have questions?

If you need help determining whether your organization or your project is eligible, want to check in with us about your idea, or are having trouble with the application, please carefully review the grant Guidelines and this FAQ, then reach out to Maine Humanities grants staff with remaining questions. We are happy to talk with you no matter where you are in the process!
